Getting in gear, getting involved-we got it all!

The time has come to say “good bye” to the dog days of summer and “hello” to the crisp cool of fall. I hope everyone enjoyed the summer days. As a part of the AABA’s summer activities, the New Lawyers Committee under the leadership of John Dowd, David Katz and Danielle Watson sponsored a “Happy Hour” at Bill Bateman’s on July 22, 2009. I was present at the event and it was a success. It was nice to mingle with the upcoming “movers and shakers” of our association.

We cannot forget that the end of the summer also marks the end of the softball season. A very big thank you to co-commissioners Doug Hofstedt and Jim Kafchiski for all of their help this season. This year, the League experienced a surprise ending when the Court House Team beat North County in the championship game. What excitement! I would like to say “great job” to all who participated in the league this year, and thank you for your continuing support. I know we all look forward to what next season has in store.

As you know, the end of summer marks the beginning of the new school year. Big yellow buses and bright shining faces, ready to take on the challenges that the new year has to offer. With the advent of the new school year, the AABA and the AA-County Bar Foundation sponsored the “back-to-school-backpack” program. Like preceding years, the program was a success, and raised approximately $3,000, with the help of the generous donations of our membership. I would like to thank all those who supported the program this year, and remind everyone that through our good work, we were able to assist students, and prepare them for the rigors of the upcoming school year.

It is at this point that I would like to give a “shout-out” to our great bar association and make a call to all who want to get involved. I know that the demands of work and family can make a day feel like it is 25 hours, however, if you are searching for a way to get connected in the legal community and the community at large, then the AABA is the place for you.

The AABA has a place for everyone. For example, if your interest lies in community service, the Community Service Division under the leadership of Gloria Wilson Shelton, has several community based programs.

Practice Notes...

Compiled by Hon. Philip Caroom

Criminal procedure - protective order - State witness' identity: Reversing the Court of Special Appeals (CSA) in Lancaster v. State, 180 Md. App. 1 (2008), the Court of Appeals (CA) here holds that trial judge erred by permitting State to keep witness identity secret until trial date where specifics as to allegedly threatened witness' expected testimony, alleged threats against the witness were not revealed in motion hearing, and alleged "reputation for violence" of defendants associates. Permission for counsel to obtain information but not to disclose the information to defendant did not cure prejudice because defendant knew hidden witnesses and would have been able to help with trial preparation. New trial was required. Lancaster v. State, - Md. - (8/27/09). Submitted by Katrina Wallace, Esq.

Criminal procedure - public vs. closed hearings - mandatory weighing: This case reviews four factors court must weigh before possibly granting constitutionally permissible closure of public trial: 1) a "party seeking to close the hearing must advance an overriding interest that is likely to be prejudiced"; (2) "the closure must be no broader than necessary to protect that interest"; (3) "the trial court must consider reasonable alternatives to closing the proceeding"; and (4) the trial court "must make findings adequate to support the closure." In the present case, trial judge heard specific testimony that some of defendant's family tried to intimidate witnesses and properly ordered them to stay outside of courtroom during trial. Robinson v. State, - Md. - (7/28/09).

Civil procedure - peace orders & injunctions

- 1st Amendment: Prior issuance of a peace order did not bar Plaintiff from also seeking injunctive relief (exceeding statutory terms of peace order) for same conduct. Injunction did not violate 1st Amendment free speech rights by prohibiting "fighting words," obscenities and verbal harrasment between neighbors. Davidson v. Seneca Crossing Homeowners Assoc., - Md. App. - (8/31/09).

Civil procedure - discovery - anonymous internet defamation:

Where Plaintiff claims online defamatory statement by an unknown person, Plaintiff may obtain a court order for disclosure of the unknown person's identity from the service provider IF certain conditions are satisfied. Holding outlines factors to be considered a showing of need, sufficient allegation of defamation, necessity for disclosure, etc. Independent Newspapers v. Brodie, 407 Md. 415 (2009).

A Teacher's Story

AABA member goes from the courtroom to the classroom... and back

By Chris Brown, AABA member

I guess there comes a time in everyone's life to . . . think. What have I been doing these last 27 years as a Plaintiff's attorney in Anne Arundel County? Have I done anything to make the world a better place? Well, you may have also pondered, what can I do? Well I have been volunteering with the Bar Association for 10 years, lots of pro bono work. Not bad. And I did volunteer for 20 years teaching school. That was pretty cool. How about the prison visiting, nice. But now what? Well the school thing was not too hard, and it was lots of fun to tell stories to the students. I know . . . I will retire and teach school! How hard can it be??

So, like many dreams, full of hope and visions of happy students learning, off I went to high school. It was a little daunting at the start. My summer reading list for both 10th and 11th grade Honors English was heavy. Each class had eight novels to read, for a total of 16 novels. Each class had about 400 pages in a text book, for a total of about 800 pages. Also, there was the essay each quarter, and the research paper for each lass. But I liked teaching writing, so how hard could that be?

Well there I was on the first day of class. 20 eager students. They were bright, and surely had done all their summer reading, let's start with the author and setting for the first novel. Who wrote Great Expectations? UGH, Mr. Brown do we need to know that? I will never use it in my life, Mr. Brown. Mr. Brown, will this be on the test? Is it a test or a quiz? How much is this worth? When will we have the test, Mr. Brown? We will have to write a paper on this? All I read was Spark notes, is that good enough to pass the quiz? You are a lawyer, Mr. Brown, tell us about your cases. Have you ever defended a murderer?

Suddenly I realized that maybe I wasn't ready for this. I hadn't even made the test/quiz thingy yet. Help, I ran to the other English teachers, do you have a test I could copy? Ok a quiz for each chapter, and a final unit test, and an essay paper. We were off and running. And the same for the other classes. And don't forget each week the 20 new vocabulary words (and quiz). And don't forget the grammar assignment every other week (and quiz). And the text book reading (and quiz). And do this 80 times. By the way you also have the forensics debate class, and the mock trial team. I hope we can win like you had done before when you were volunteering. There is a teacher's meeting tonight, and your input on the new curriculum is due by Friday.

Suddenly I couldn't breath. I don't think I in-

Living on a Fantasy Island

Those are the guys for whom a night in a finished basement with a bunch of other guys is not the optimal way to spend a Saturday night.

The end of summer marks many things in sports. The pennant push in baseball. The end of the majors season in golf. The beginning of college and professional football. But before that, at least in most cases, it means fantasy football draft season. I have been playing various fantasy sports for about six years now. And I had to be dragged into it kicking and screaming. Initially, I thought it was the province of nerds. And it is, don't get me wrong. But like the several stages of grief that we are taught, acceptance of that fact is crucial to fully embracing fantasy sports. It took me several years of prodding from my friends to convince myself that, yeah, I was definitely in the fantasy sports demographic.

Your typical fantasy draft usually takes place at a bar or a friend's house, in my case the latter. My buddy that runs the league wrote a computer program so that guys in our league can draft online from their computers at home. Therefore, some people in the league are not actually there. Those would be the single guys. Those are the guys for whom a night in a finished basement with a bunch of other guys is not the optimal way to spend a Saturday night. Rather, this is the event they have to get over with before they can get on with the bulk of their evening.

The guys that are actually there for the draft are the guys that are married and/or have kids. For them, this is the big night out. See, wives love fantasy drafts, or at least they should. They can give their husbands the false impression that they're being "cool" by letting him spend the evening with his buddies at one of their homes or a bar. When in reality, they know that this is the one instance where their husband can go

For civil cases valued under $50,000, our fees are as low as $100/hour per party. With most small cases lasting only a few hours, your portion of the fee is normally just a few hundred dollars. out and absolutely nothing bad is going to happen. If he's at the buddy's house, he's with a bunch of guys. If he's at a bar, same difference, since no woman is going to be remotely interested in a guy that goes to a bar for a fantasy draft.

The draft itself is just as exciting as you might imagine. A bunch of guys sitting around in front of a spread of magazines and computers loaded with statistics. It's like NASA headquarters during a shuttle launch except without the societal contribution. Everybody takes turns picking players. Everyone else makes fun of their picks. Initially the jokes seem funny until you hear the same ones year after year. By the time you're done, after the 17th round or so, you don't even know half the guys on your team. They are just a set of numbers from a magazine.

And yet, it's great. Before fantasy sports, when someone told you that they put wagers on games

"to make them more interesting," what they really were saying was "I have a crippling gambling addiction." Now, for a much tidier amount, you can have a true interest in that Seahawks-Chiefs game, and you can watch that Rams-Texans game to the end. And you won't have to apologize or feel like "that guy" at the bar that everyone knows is cursing because his mortgage payment just floated away at the same time as JaMarcus Russell's last pass did. The only key is, don't lose your mind in public just because Tony Gonzalez didn't get you that extra catch. If you do, people will either think you have an unhealthy relationship with fantasy sports, or that you did have $25,000 riding on the game. Either way, it's not a good way to impress people. ■

Family Law Update

by Jennifer K. Cassel, Family Law Administrator

We are all aware of the difficult financial times and the necessary belt-tightening that has resulted. The Family Division of the Circuit Court has experienced a significant reduction in funding for FY 2010. As a result, there have been changes made to several programs.

In January 2009, the Family Division initiated a program entitled Teens Count, an educational program for the teenage children of families litigating custody or visitation issues. This program has had to be suspended indefinitely. The hope is that funding will become available to reinstate this service in future.

The Parent Empowerment Program, also called PEP, an educational program for parents with children involved in delinquency proceedings, also has had to be suspended indefinitely.

Funding for psychological evaluations for indigent litigants has been reduced significantly. Limited funds are available on a first come first served basis.

Additionally, funding for child counsel, whether the role be Child's Privilege Attorney, Best Interest Attorney or Advocate, has been reduced. Limited funds are available on a first come first served basis.

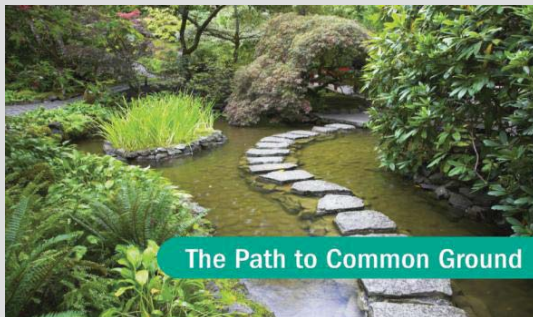

Funding for custody/visitation mediation fee waivers was eliminated. If a litigant is financially eligible for a fee waiver, the court will refer the case to the Anne Arundel Conflict Resolution Center for mediation services at no charge to the litigant.

Other programs funded by the family division grant, such as the Family Law Self Help Center and The Visitation Center of Anne Arundel County, have sustained significant budget reductions which may result in the reduction of service hours. Should this occur, the changes will be published in The Barrister and be available from the Family Law Division.

If you have any questions regarding these budget reductions, you may contact Jennifer K. Cassel, Family Law Administrator, at 410-222-1448. ▣

SUCCESSFULLY EMERGING OUT OF THE POLITICAL TRENCHES, SHARON GROSFELD HAS RETURNED TO THE PRACTICE OF LAW.

Sharon has worked with Paula Peters since 1989, specializing in family law cases, and has been recognized for her contributions to the field by being awarded the prestigious Beverly Groner Award from the Family and Juvenile Law Section Council. Sharon also served in the Maryland General Assembly for 12 years, sponsoring legislation that modernized family law. At the end of her Senate term in 2006, Sharon chose not to run for reelection and instead started working at the DNC on Capitol Hill as the Executive Director of the Women's Leadership Forum. After the successful election of President Barack Obama, Sharon returned to the practice of law and is now accepting referrals.

haled for about three months. There was no time. In my occasional delirium I remembered I used to go fishing on long kayak rides, I used to go to the beach, I used to run and exercise. Where was that time and place, had it all been a dream?

Every night I would fall out of the car at home. In my 100 pound sack were hundreds of quizzes to grade. There were interesting classes to prepare for, for the next day. There were tests to create. Connections to great novels to make. Isn't Frankenstein's search just like Dr. Jekyll's? But Dr. Frankenstein never really existed, so what was the author, Shelley, trying to say about mankind from her perspective? Get ready for the essay, actually I want the students to be great writers, so I think I will do two essays a quarter. And one of the essays will be in class, and timed, just like the SAT, so they will be really ready. Don't forget the vocabulary quizzes. I think every time a student uses a vocabulary word in class he or she will get a piece of candy.

Exhausted to sleep when the work for the night is over, to get up again at six to face the student piranhas.

Don't forget the mock trial club meets Monday and Thursday nights after school, competition is on another night till 9:00. The debate competitions are all day Saturday from 7 AM to 7 PM.

How would you compare the search for the American dream found in My Antonia with the search found in Secret Life of Bees? Write me an essay. Hey let's write to the author and suggest storylines for a sequel. Maybe she will come to our school for a presentation? One of the things I didn't realize was for every essay I assigned there would be 80 of them for me to read and comment on. But what great novels! A Scarlet Letter, Death of a Salesman, East of Eden, Dorian Gray, A Midsummer Night's Dream! You all should take the time to read, or reread your High School reading list. What cool stuff!

Five, six, seven months later I hadn't had one moment to rest. Vacations were a thing of the past. Even holidays were filled with quizzes and papers and creative stuff.

I never took a day off... never got sick... couldn't, no time. They sent me to a teacher's seminar for AP English. Finally a day off. Oops. I have to get a substitute. Here is a list of names, good luck. So while preparing for the normal stuff for the next day. Make sure you have everything copied for the following day in advance to hand off to the substitute. Double the work. I never want another day off!

But what great students! They nominated me for a national teacher's award. I got it. Maybe they aren't piranhas after all.

Just the other day a student came to see me after school and said: I just had to tell you I did really well on the SAT, and it was all because of you. Really cool.

So exhausted, I tried the dream, I sit writing this from my old desk in Glen Burnie waiting for the next Plaintiff's case. I have a new profound respect for teachers. ▣
